Library Research
Finding Relevant and Reliable Resources

Using tools and resources introduced in the Library Research Instruction sessions, gather the required information for four sources directly related to your research topic.

Submitting the Assignment
Scan your completed assignment and save it as a PDF. Upload the file to the Library Research Instruction Module on Canvas. An easy-to-use scanner is available in the Library’s Reference Area.

Completing the Assignment
You will locate each of the following:
1. A Subject Encyclopedia Article from a book found in the Credo Reference database
2. A Book (hard copy or e-book) located using WorldCat (the library catalog)
3. A Scholarly Journal Article you can access in its entirety using a library research database
4. A High-Quality Internet Resource found on the open Web (not provided by PLNU)

Your Name: _______________________________________

Professor’s Name: ___________________________________

Research Topic (be specific): _______________________________________

Search Terms
These should capture the main components of your research topic.
1. _______________________________________
2. _______________________________________
3. _______________________________________
4. _______________________________________

Source #1: Article from a Subject Encyclopedia in Credo Reference

Subject encyclopedias are written for college-level researchers. Each article is written by an expert (or experts) and lists additional sources for further reading. Articles provide background or overview information. The Library has both electronic encyclopedias in the Credo Reference database and encyclopedias in print. The librarians are happy to help you find an encyclopedia article!

Use the Credo Reference database from the Ryan Library All Databases list to locate a subject encyclopedia article on your topic. This article will provide background information for your research.

Navigating to the Credo Reference database from the Library’s homepage:
1. Go to the Library’s homepage (pointloma.edu/library).
2. Choose the All Databases list under Quick Links (on left side of the homepage).
3. Choose ‘C’ for Credo on the All Databases list. The Credo database is the last one listed under databases that start with ‘C.’ Note: Once you click on the Credo hyperlink, you may be directed to enter your PLNU username and password (the same as used for Canvas and PLNU email.)
How did you find it? Describe exactly how you searched for your subject encyclopedia. Include what key words you tried and how you navigated through Credo.

Provide the information necessary for citing this type of resource in MLA format:

Article author(s):

Article title:

Encyclopedia title:

Encyclopedia editor(s):

Edition (if given): Date published:

Publishing Company:

Permalink:

Is it relevant? Explain how this source relates to your research topic. What unique information or perspective does this encyclopedia article add to your understanding of the topic?

Source #2: Book Available from PLNU

Use the WorldCat tab on the Ryan Library home page to locate a book, either a hard copy print book on our library’s shelves or a PLNU e-book available through WorldCat.

How did you find it? Describe exactly how you searched for your book. Include where you looked and the search terms you tried. Explain how you got to the book so you could actually read it.

Provide the information necessary for citing a book in MLA format:

Author(s):

Book title:

Publisher:

Date published:

Database (for e-books):

URL (for e-books):
Is it relevant? Explain how this book relates to your research topic. What unique information or perspective will this book add to your understanding of the topic?

Is it authoritative? Provide three specific clues about the author, publisher, or the information itself that demonstrate the credibility of this source. Explore the qualifications of the author and look for evidence that the information is accurate and up to date.
1.
2.
3.

Source #3: Scholarly Journal Article from Ryan Library

Use the ARTICLES tab on the Ryan Library home page to locate a complete full text scholarly journal article. Use the tools available on your results screen to narrow or improve your search results.

How did you find it? Describe exactly how you searched for your article. Include the steps you followed, the search terms you tried, and any special options you selected. Explain how you got to the complete full text scholarly article so you could read or print it out. Librarians will gladly help with this process if you have questions.

Provide the information necessary for citing a scholarly article from a database in MLA format:

Author(s):
Article title:
Journal title:
Volume number: Issue number: Date: Page numbers:
Database name: DOI or Permalink:

Is it relevant? Explain how this article relates to your research topic. What does the topic of this article add to your understanding of the subject you have chosen to research?

Is it scholarly? Provide three specific clues about the authors, the article, or your search process that indicate the article is scholarly.
1.
2.
3.
Source #4: High-Quality Internet Resource

Use a search engine like Google to search for a relevant, authoritative website that provides reliable information about your research topic. Use the advanced search options to narrow your results effectively.

How did you find it? Describe exactly how you searched for the internet source. Include the search engine you used, the search terms you tried, and any special search strategies you used.

___________________________________________________________________________________________

___________________________________________________________________________________________

___________________________________________________________________________________________

Provide the information necessary for citing an online source in MLA format:

Author(s):........................................................................................................................................

Article/page title:..............................................................................................................................

Overall site title:...............................................................................................................................

Publisher/sponsor (if different from site title):....................................................................................

Publication/update date: ________________ Access date (if no pub. date is given): ________________

URL: ______________________________________________________________________________________

Is it relevant? Explain how this source relates to your research topic. What does it add to your understanding of the subject you have chosen to research?

___________________________________________________________________________________________

___________________________________________________________________________________________

___________________________________________________________________________________________

Is it authoritative? Provide three specific clues about the author, publisher/sponsor, or the information itself that demonstrate the credibility of this source. Explore the qualifications of the author or sponsoring organization and look for evidence that the information is accurate and up to date.

1. _______________________________________________________________________________________

2. _______________________________________________________________________________________

3. _______________________________________________________________________________________

Applying MLA Format

Select one of the four sources listed in this assignment and create a complete MLA citation for that item. Consult your course text, the library citation cheat sheets, and outside resources like the OWL at Purdue for instructions. Search for additional information if your citation requires it. Write your citation carefully and legibly:

___________________________________________________________________________________________

___________________________________________________________________________________________

___________________________________________________________________________________________

___________________________________________________________________________________________